Modern Mentorship

with Dr. Lindsay Hastings, Clifton Professor in Mentoring Research and Director, Nebraska Human Resources Institute (NHRI)

For the first time in history, four generations are represented in the workplace and every day leadership positions are being transferred between them. Positioned somewhere in the middle, today’s young professionals and millennials have the unique opportunity to become leaders themselves while also influencing the next generation of difference-makers. Dr. Lindsay Hastings will outline the concept of ‘generativity’ in the workplace and explain why the key to successful mentorship is investing in one another—building a ripple effect of community leaders for generations to come.

Come interact with your peers and learn together how to identify influential mentors in your life as well as how to become a better leader by mentoring others. You’ll also hear stories from other Columbus area professionals and leave feeling motivated and equipped to utilize modern mentorship in your day-to-day life to achieve your personal and professional goals.
